WARRANTS ISSUED TODAY FOR TWO MEN

Kentucky Lake Sailing Club Ready For Regatta In June

A record number of entries are expected in the fifth annual sailing of the Governor's Cup Regatta at Kentucky Lake State Park on June 1 and June 2, 1957. The Kentucky Lake Sailing Club is looking forward to holding the biggest regatta ever run on Kentucky Lake. Skippers from at least six states will make the trip to Hardin, to try once again to win the coveted Governor's Cup. Most of the skippers will gather early this year in order to spend some time in "tuning up" their racing boats. Final preparations and adjustments will be made during the first scheduled race at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon, May 31.

All hands will be "dead serious" on Saturday morning, June 1 at 10 o'clock when the first of three scheduled races will commence. The second race will start at 2 p.m. on Saturday, the third and final race will be run at 10 a.m. Sunday, June 2. Crossing the starting line in each of these races will be sailboats such as Penguins, Thistles, E. Scows, X's, L's, Ravens, Stars, Lightnings, Rebels and Snipes. Class boats race together as a class, and at the same time compete against all others on a handicap basis for the Governor's Cup. Governor A. B. Chandler has been invited to attend and present the first prize award to the winner. There will also be a club trophy given to the club whose members accumulate the greatest number of points.

Spectators may watch the races from a point of land near the state bathing beach. There is no charge for witnessing this colorful event.

Craig Riddle, Jr., Madisonville, Ky., Regatta Chairman states that those people who will want to spend a long weekend—from Memorial Holiday on Thursday, May 30 through the following Sunday, June 2 will find a fine hotel, cottages and motels available at the State Park. Launching and harbor facilities of all types are available to the yachtsmen. Anyone interested in entering the regatta may write J. Craig Riddle, Jr., Box 151, Madisonville, Ky.

Rains Saved Strawberry Crop In State

FRANKFORT — C. Harold Bray, director of markets, said Tuesday the rains that have been falling on Kentucky the past few days have saved the state's strawberry crop.

He estimated that if the spring drought had continued another three to five days, the strawberry income of Kentucky growers would have been cut in half from original estimates of five million dollars.

He said the rains were fairly general across the state with the greatest benefits going to producers in the north-central Kentucky.

The rains probably came too late for the Blakemore variety which ripens early, and Bray predicted that the yield from this type would be only 5 percent of normal.

The other leading varieties, Tennessee Beauties and Pocahontas, ripen later in the spring and therefore have not been as seriously damaged as the Blakemores.

Bray said the early berries this year were averaging $6 per crate for No. 1, but he expected the price to strengthen by next Monday with the quality of berries improving and the supply from southern growers dwindling.

Flash Storms Did Little Damage To County Roads

The three flash storms Monday apparently resulted in no damage on county roads and bridges, according to John Ramsey, county road commissioner.

Ramsey revealed that the creeks and rivers had not reached their over flow level and that no major wash outs occurred around the bridges. In nearby Obion County, Tennessee, extensive floods were reported.

Letter To Editor

Dear Editor:
Our Government has proposed to Russia to set up mutual inspection. Just what could we possibly gain therefrom? We know that Russia has air fields and bomb factories. How will seeing from the right of aerial inspection help us? Which one make hydrogen bombs and which one make hoes and spades? Who can tell from a plane?

We have built up an elaborate radar system to guard us against a surprise attack by Russia. Suppose that we now give Russia the right of aerial inspection. She wishes to do a thorough job, so she sends a big squadron of inspecting planes. Each "happens" to carry a few atomic or hydrogen bombs, and these "happen" to fall out over our principal centers of manufacture of war material and our leading military air fields. Two of the hydrogen bombs might accidentally land on Washington and New York respectively?

Would such "happenstances" be out of harmony with the aims and characteristics of the Russian leaders? Would they?

Hazel PTA Meets On Thursday

The Hazel High School P-T-A will meet Thursday at 2:00 p.m. in the school auditorium.

Mrs. Carmon Parks has charge of the program and all members are urged to be present.

Letter To Editor

Mr. Jim Williams
The Ledger and Times
Murray, Kentucky

Dear Mr. Williams:

For the first time, Murray State College will offer a course in "Driver Education" this summer. The course will begin on June 10 and extend through June 28. It will be possible to teach a limited number of people how to drive an automobile. It is possible that there are several people in Calloway County who would like to avail themselves of this driving instruction so I thought you might be interested in letting people know about it through your publication. People from fifteen and one-half years of age upward will be admitted. Mr. Walter Sauter will have charge of the program, and anyone interested in it should contact him at the Health Building through the college telephone exchange.

Sincerely yours,
William G. Nash
Dean

Stove Plant Gets Award Of Merit

The National Safety Council announced today that The Murray Manufacturing Company, located in Murray, has been presented the Council's "Award of Merit" plaque for a noteworthy safety performance during 1956. This is the second highest award the Council bestows on any manufacturing organization.

The award is presented only where an establishment's record satisfies rigid requirements laid down by the Council's award plan for recognizing good industrial safety records. This plant qualified for the award because of a 54% reduction in occupational injuries during 1956 as compared to the three previous years.

The company contributes this honor to the Plant Safety program during our Employees' Safety Committee. The 19 man Safety Committee during 1956 were Ivan Jones, Bobby Mitchell, Bill Fair, Thomas Duncan, Lee Travis, Ewing Stubblefield, James Patterson, Newell Hopkins, Hookins, Hooker Paschall, Oris Guthrie, Helen Washam, Otis Magness, John B. Johnston, Marion Crick, James O. Elkins, John Salvers, John Workman, Edwin Robinson and Bill Warren. The Safety Committee for 1957 is Art Lavender, Ralph Lovett, Edwin Greenfield, Charles L. Stubblefield, Otis Elkins, Thomas Lyles, Isaac Clanton, Harry Key, Carl Hoke, Gray Roberts, Alvie Jones, Carl Moody, Oris Guthrie, John C. Steele, J. B. Johnston, O. K. Stubblefield, Bill Geurin, T. G. Cud, and Cecil Houston.

According to Macon Blankenship, Safety Director, the Safety Record for the first five months of 1957 is better than for the same comparative period of 1956.

Mrs. Ann Herron Cohron To Teach In California

Mrs. Ann Herron Cohron, Reference Librarian at Murray State College, will join the summer faculty of the University of California in Berkeley. She will teach in the School of Librarianship during the first six-weeks session which begins June 17.

Charged With Unlawfully Taking Noel Cole From Home

Warrants were issued today for the arrest of Joe Williams and R. B. Waddey of Nashville, Tennessee in connection with the taking of Noel Cole from his home yesterday morning.

Cole was taken by force from his home by the two men, according to Mrs. Noel Cole and Sheriff Brigham Futrell.

The two men claimed that they had put up $500 bond for Cole in Nashville on a driving while intoxicated charge, and that he had failed to show up for the trial, forfeiting the bond. They claimed that Cole had paid them $25.00 to put up the bond.

The warrant, which was mailed this morning by Sheriff Futrell called for the arrest of Williams and Waddey for "imprisoning another person and transporting him against his will, beyond the bounds of this state, without authority of law, but under circumstances not constituting kidnapping. The said Joe Williams and R. B. Waddey on the 14th day of May 1957 in Calloway County, Kentucky, did unlawfully imprison and transport beyond the bounds of the state of Kentucky Noel Cole, against his will and without the consent of the said Noel Cole, in a manner otherwise than according to law, the said Joe Williams and R. B. Waddey and neither of them being officers and having no valid warrant for the arrest of the said Noel Cole; nor legal authority to serve any such warrant at said time and place and not having reasonable grounds for believing that the said Noel Cole had committed a felony, and the said Noel Cole having committed no felony or any offense whatever."

The lengthy warrant was signed by Wayne Rayburn, Calloway County Judge.

The entire case started yesterday morning at 7:30 when the two bondsmen from Nashville, Tennessee came to Murray. According to Sheriff Brigham Futrell and Mrs. Cole, the two men knocked on the door of the Cole home, at Second and Main street, and asked Mr. Cole's fifteen-year old son, Robert, if his father was at home.

Robert called his father, and the men told Cole to come with them. "Not unless you have the right papers," Cole is reported to have told them. The men then grabbed Cole as he attempted to close the door in their faces.

The boy said that the men then pulled a pistol and began to beat his father about the head. They then dragged him to the car as he screamed for aid from his neighbors.

Williams told the Nashville Tennessean that he had a copy of Cole's bond and a capias warrant issued by the Nashville Criminal Court on May 10 whenor driving while intoxicated.

he and R. B. Waddey went to Cole's home.

"He (Cole) came out of the house, but when I told him what we wanted, he jumped back in and tried to close the door," Williams said. "I wasn't going to let him close that door."

Williams said that the three men struggled in the doorway of the Cole home. "He had hold of the door, pulling," Williams said.

"He hit me," Williams continued. "He would have knocked me down but I had hold of his belt."

"Didn't nobody hit him" the bondsman told Nashville police.

Williams said that he had offered Sheriff Brigham Futrell $25.00 to pick up Cole earlier. "He wouldn't do it," Williams said.

Sheriff Brigham Futrell told the Ledger and Times that early this month, he had received a call from Williams who seemed extremely angry. He said that Williams wanted to know if he knew Cole and where he lived. "The man seemed to be so angry at Cole," Futrell said, "that I thought it wise to write down his name, address, and phone number."

Shortly after the reported kidnapping yesterday morning, Sheriff Futrell said that he remembered the telephone conversation with Williams early this month and called Sheriff Tom Cartwright of Nashville.

He asked Cartwright if Williams lived in Nashville. The sheriff told him his office was right across the street. Futrell then asked the sheriff to check and see if Williams was in Nashville at that time. Cartwright reported to Futrell that Williams had "gone to Murray, Kentucky to get a man."

Futrell said then he felt sure that Williams and some other person had done the alleged kidnapping.

Warrants issued for John Doe and Richard Lee were wired to Nashville yesterday. The wire read "Warrants for John Doe and Richard Lee, charged transporting Noel Cole against his will beyond the bounds of the state of Kentucky, not according to law under circumstances not constituting kidnapping."

Attorney General Harry Nichol of Davidson County said that he did not plan to take any action against the two bondsmen at this time "because of the present disputed legal rights of bondsmen."

Chief Deputy Fred Lassiter said in Nashville yesterday the sheriff's office would not arrest the two bondsmen unless warrants charging them with a crime were received and declared valid by the attorney general.

Cole was booked into the county jail at 1:40 yesterday afternoon. Nichols said Cole failed to appear for trial on March 26 after he had been indicted Criminal Court on May 10 whenor driving while intoxicated.

A Rose For An Occasion

MARKING THE FIRST TIME SINCE 1938 that a British Prime Minister has visited a sovereign Germany, Chancellor Konrad Adenauer (right), pins a yellow rose on the lapel of Prime Minister Harold MacMillan at a conference in Bonn. Adenauer is said to have urged that withdrawal of British troops from West Germany be delayed until build-up of his army is further advanced.

Denise Will Not Dunk Zsa Zsa

By DENISE DARCEL

Written For United Press

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Every performer who works in a Las Vegas saloon these days has to come up with a gimmick. Opera stars Helen Traubel and Marguerite Piazza are even doing racy and roll. Lisa Kirk is taking a shower on stage and Marlene Dietrich got a lot of publicity when she made her night club debut wearing some gowns that were almost transparent.

Marie Wilson is doing a strip tease in Ken Murray's "Black-outs." Betty Hutton puts on blackface before the audience.

When I signed to appear in Las Vegas at the Hacienda Hotel in "Can Can" the press agents for the hotel called me up and said "Denise, let's get together and figure out a gimmick."

A French girl doesn't scare too easily, but some of the things they suggested for publicity would have cost me my boyfriend.

The publicity man thought one sure way of topping Marlene Dietrich would be for me to be photographed wearing a diamond in my navel. "Don't worry," they said, "we can get a big zircon and nobody would be able to tell the difference in a photograph." The fact I didn't even expose my stomach in the show didn't worry them.

When I turned this idea down they came up with another and guaranteed it would make headlines. Zsa Zsa Gabor, they said, will go for any kind of publicity.

Why don't you invite her over to the Hacienda as your guest? Tell her you have been reading about her not wanting to shave off her hair for that movie about Stalin. They assure me Zsa Zsa would react violently if I told her she would look better with her head shaved. "One word would lead to another," they said, and I should shove Zsa Zsa into the swimming pool with all her clothes on.

I have earned a lot of money in motion pictures and night clubs since I have been in the United States. It's not good for my morale if I will not believe I can make a career out of talent.

There are too many American girls singing French songs in night clubs these days to make that a novelty. That's why I preferred to make my "gimmick" a straight singing and acting role in a proven Broadway hit, "Can Can" for my Las Vegas appearance this year. It's a wonderful part and let's face it — I don't have to spend any money on special material.

PROBE HITLER'S EARLY DAYS

THE ERNST ROHM massacre of 1934, when Adolf Hitler rose to power in Germany, is aired in a Munich court as these two participants stand at trial. They are 65-year-old Sepp Dietrich (left), a Hitler hatchman, and Michael Lippert, 60, a Stadelheim prison official at the time. He is accused of having been one of a two-man team which shot Rohm. The court is trying to establish who did the Rohm killing, and whether there actually was a revolt plot against Hitler. At the time, some 200 Storm Troopers were executed. Later Dietrich commanded a panzer division, and got 25 years for his part in the Ardennes offensive massacre of prisoners. He was released in 1953. Lippert became guard chief of Dachau concentration camp. (International Soundphoto)

U.S. To Make More Use Of "Titoism" As A Weapon

By CHARLES M. McCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent

The United States seems to have decided to make more use of "Titoism" as a weapon in its cold war with Soviet Russia.

It is known that about 100 million dollars in economic aid is about to be granted to Poland. Now it is reported the government has decided to resume its military aid to Yugoslavia.

Both countries are Communist-ruled. They are pretty likely to remain so for the foreseeable future. The question is whether the United States ought to help any country that has a Communist government.

Certainly it is against United States policy to aid Communism. But it happens that in the instance of Poland and Yugoslavia, any aid granted to them will not help Soviet Russia. It would be calculated to loosen further the grip of Moscow on all Red-ruled countries.

Won't independence. Poland won a great measure of independence.

GOP Maps Strategy For The South

By TOM T. GAY
United Press Staff Correspondent

LOUISVILLE — Southern Republican leaders today mapped strategy for a campaign to capture control of Dixie from the Democrats at the close of a 12-state conference here.

The call for an all-out fight in every congressional district of the southern states was issued by President Eisenhower and top GOP leaders who are setting their sights on the 1958 election. Former Arizona Gov. Howard Pyle, deputy assistant to the President, told delegates to the conference at a banquet last night that "For too long your states have been taken for granted by the opposition."

"Many speak of the power of the southern - held chairmanships of the key committees of Congress. Still, that power was not enough to protect the tides of change for you. That power will not be all the South needs for the kind of a future that your enormous potential already predicts for you," Pyle said.

He added that without the South's "growing individualism at the polls" the GOP losses would have been more serious in the 1956 election.

Queen Is The Biggest Drawing Card

By CLAIRE COX
United Press Staff Correspondent

LONDON — The French have the Eiffel Tower and the Swiss have the Alps, but the British have Queen Elizabeth.

The Queen, along with the rest of her royal family, is the nation's No. 1 tourist attraction.

Her Majesty frowns on any hint of commercialization of the crown, but British officials privately admit that Elizabeth is a tourist drawing card just because she is queen.

Headed by Elizabeth, the Windsor family in its everyday life as well as on ceremonial occasions is the cast for a spectacle that draws thousands of persons to the United Kingdom.

Tourists have been known to stand for hours in front of Buckingham Palace for a glimpse of Prince Philip flying away in the royal helicopter to an appointment. The changing of the guard at the palace every other day when the Queen is in residence draws large crowds.

PRESIDENT SWORN IN

NEW DELHI — Dr. Rajendra Prasad was sworn in today for his second term as president of India.

Everything associated with royalty is popular with tourists, particularly those from America. There are the crown jewels, under close guard in the Tower of London. There is Windsor Castle, which is open for partial inspection when the Queen is not there. The Queen is such a big attraction in fact, that much to British chagrin her recent state visit to Paris is attracting a number of tourists there.

Almost everywhere a tourist turns in London there is some stamp of royalty. Shops bear the royal coat of arms and the phrase, "By appointment to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II." Helmeted horse guards sit motionless atop their steeds guarding the royal treasury. Every street corner mailbox bears the imprint of the crown, and so does every letter that goes through the British mails.

Buckingham Palace is only a few hundred yards from Piccadilly, the "Times Square" of London. There are royal palaces all over town, as well as scattered through the British countryside. The British Travel Association advises that tourists who want to make sure of seeing the Queen should obtain a list of the royal engagements and then find a curbside vantage point whenever she goes out.

Death Wreckage After Cheery Sendoff

A TWISTED PILE OF WRECKAGE (left) and 14 dead resulted from the crash of the luxury sports car in which the Marquis Alfonso de Portago flashed out of Mantua, Italy in the thousand mile road race during which he died with his co-driver, Eddie Nelson of Beloit, Wis. Waving the Marquis off at Mantua, was film star Linda Christian (right), former wife of Tyrone Power, who is reported to have fainted as she went to view de Portago's body at Guidizzolo, where the crash occurred. Twelve spectators along the road died as the car swerved off the road. (International Radio-Soundphoto)

Each of the members played the numbers each is to play at the recital later. Games were played by the group after which refreshments of cold drinks and cookies were served by the hostesses. Those present were Jane Bryan, Shirley Cochran, Steve Douglas, Vickie Ellis, Kathy Farrell, Cynthia Greenfield, Jim Hart, Jr., Jan Jones, Trudy Lilly, Phyllis Mitchell, Gayle McClure, Mary Jo Oakley, Karl Olla, Patsy Perdue, Kay Pinkley, Rita Ryan, Linda Ryan, Pam Ryan, Mary Keys Russell, Dorothy Swann, Sue Warming, Jane Young, Miss Lillian Watters, Miss Sandy Lilly, Mrs. Oakley, and Mrs. Lilly.

Miss Rozene Dowdy Honored Saturday With Tea Shower

Miss Rozene Dowdy, bride-elect of Holmes Ellis, Jr., was the honoree at a delightfully planned tea shower held at the lovely home of Mrs. Hugo Wilson on South Twelfth Street on Saturday, May 11, from two to five o'clock in the afternoon.

The hostesses for the pre-nuptial occasion were Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Vernon Cochran, and Mrs. John Cochran.

Receiving the guests with the honoree were her sister, Mrs. John Cochran, and her mother-in-law to be, Mrs. Holmes Ellis. Miss Dowdy chose to wear for the occasion a navy silk shantung sheath dress with navy accessories and a hostesses' gift corsage of the white carnations. Mrs. Cochran wore a corsage of pink carnations and Mrs. Ellis wore a corsage of cymbidium orchids.

The beautifully appointed table was overlaid with a pink metallic cloth and centered with a gorgeous arrangement of pink carnations in a silver bowl flanked by silver candelabra holding pink tapers.

Miss Nancy Spann presided at the punch bowl and Miss Jeanette Paschall served the cakes which were decorated in white and pink. Miss Janet Jetton kept the register.

The mantel was adorned with a lovely arrangement of pink flowers in front of which the receiving line was formed. Other arrangements of spring flowers were used throughout the house. Approximately fifty-five persons called during the afternoon hours.

Mrs. Lila Kondratko and George Cierpiak have returned to their home in Detroit, Mich., after visiting three weeks with Mrs. Kondratko's mother, Mrs. H. M. Williams, and sister, Mrs. Albert Crider and family, South Ninth Street.

The program chairman, Mrs. Maudye Hale, gave the devotion and led in prayer. Those on the program were Mrs. Hardin Morris, Mrs. H. M. Williams, Mrs. J. C. Stamps, and Mrs. Hillman Maupin.

A short business session was conducted by the president, Mrs. Keys Keel. Mrs. Harry Sheckle closed the meeting with prayer. The hostess served refreshments during the social hour.

Members present were Mesdames Hardin Morris, Alfred Keel, Hilman Maupin, Maudye Hale, H. M. Williams, Zelma Rumsfeld, J. C. Stamps, James Sheckle, Obedt Garland, Dock Bogges, Thanie Parker, Harry Sheckle and Keys Keel. A visitor was Mrs. Halford Bean.

Miss Linn Davison Guest Speaker For Wesleyan Meeting

The Wesleyan Circle of the Woman's Society of Christian Service of the First Methodist Church held its regular meeting at the church on Thursday, May 9, at seven-thirty o'clock in the evening.

Miss Linn Davison, student at Murray State College, presented the program for the evening.

The subject of her very interesting and inspiring talk was "Self". The program leader, Mrs. James Diuguid, introduced the speaker. The devotion was given by Mrs. Marion West. The program was opened with a poem by Mrs. N. B. Ellis, spiritual life leader.

Mrs. Olin Moore, chairman, presided at the meeting. The minutes were read by the secretary, Mrs. Diuguid, and the treasurer's report was given by Mrs. George Fielder.

The hostesses — Mrs. Marion West, Mrs. Ed Griffin, and Miss Lillian Tate — served refreshments during the social hour.

Group III Of CWF Meets At Home Of Mrs. Maurice Crass

Mrs. Maurice Crass, Jr., opened her home on Beale Street for the meeting of Group III of the Christian Women's Fellowship of the First Christian Church held on Thursday, May 9, at eight o'clock in the evening. "Schools of the Philippines" was the subject of the very interesting and inspirational program presented by Mrs. Howard Nichols.

Mrs. Rupert Stivers, chairman of the group, presided at the meeting. Refreshments were served by the hostess to the twelve members present.

BOWLER SCORES 299

MEMPHIS 67 — The No. 5 pin wobbled on its edge but refused to topple and so bowler Julian Levitch lost $10,000. After 11 consecutive strikes, Levitch missed the No. 5 pin on the 12th roll, making his score 299. Levitch wasn't very happy, for the alley manager has a standing offer of $10,000 to any bowler who rolls a perfect 300 game.

PREVENTIVE MEDICINE

LOS ANGELES 68 — William J. Fox, a beekeeper, brought suit for $5,225 Sunday against county agriculture inspectors who didn't mind his "bees - ness." Fox charged the inspectors came to look for bee diseases but left hives unlocked, exposed the insects to cold temperatures and smashed queen bees.

Held As Slayer

GERRY STULL, 16, of Hammond, Ind., is held by police in connection with the butcher knife slaying of Miss Myrtle Cabene, 72, whose nude body was found in the bathtub of her home. Two youths said they saw Stull through a window of the victim's home as he dragged the body into the bathroom. Stull was wearing bloody trousers when arrested.

RUN FOR YOUR LIFE

CHAPTER 14

A SLIM, fair young man was standing in the lobby of the inn, waiting for Bert. He was looking up from the newspaper he was reading in the office.

The latter did so. "Looking for someone?"

"Well, actually—"

Before he could finish Nora cried breathlessly, "Garry Potter! What a delightful surprise!"

Mr. Potter noticed in concern how thin she had grown, saw the dark shadows under her eyes, the look of strain around her mouth. Surprise, it is, he thought, and picked up his cue smoothly.

"Nora! I had no idea you were here. I thought I'd get in a nice active week of horseback riding and walking and perhaps some tennis. You are an extra dividend."

"Bert," said Nora, "Mr. Potter is an old and dear friend. I'd like very much to have him stay."

Bert looked from one to the other. "We've got three extra rooms right now. This is supposed to be our vacation. If Hazel has to cook for a whole mob—"

"I'll make it up to her," Nora said quickly.

Bert shrugged heavy shoulders and ambled out of the room.

Nora held out both hands to Mr. Potter. "I'm so glad you came. So grateful. I was afraid you wouldn't understand my—"

"Call for help!"

"I suppose it did sound like that. Come into the living room. There's so little time and I have so much to say. Did you know the police are going to re-open the case?"

"I assumed they would," Mr. Potter asked quietly. "Is that what is wrong? Are you afraid of the police, Nora?"

"No, not of them. It's worse than that. Either I'm going mad or someone is trying to kill me, and I hardly know which is worse."

She told him everything, the words tumbling over each other. When she had finished she was shaking from head to foot. He put his hands on her shoulders, gently forced her down into a chair.

"There are a few points I'd like to know more about," he said. "First—changing your will. Have you signed the new one yet?"

"No. It won't be ready for me until tomorrow or the next day. You cut out the Demings, your aunt and the Hegers. Does that mean you believe one of them tried to kill you?"

"There isn't any other choice, is there?" Nora said.

"Oh, there might be," he said absently. "Your nurse, for one."

Nora shook her head. "Not Garry! In the first place, she is the only one who wouldn't profit by my death. And then—you don't know what I owe her. She nursed me in the hospital and probably saved my life. She has been with me ever since. She looks after me like a mother."

"Why have you needed a nurse all these months?"

"I don't really," Nora said. "But I haven't picked up strength and my physician said he'd be much happier if she continued to be with me. But why on earth—"

"Well," Mr. Potter said, "there are several points. One, she brought you the photograph of Candy. Two, she eavesdropped on the conversation last night. Three, she is in love with Howard Ives, who is one of the few suspects for Candy's murder."

"Garry is in love with him?" she said incredulously. "How do you know?"

"He told her about the accidental meeting which had so obviously been planned by the nurse. A woman on the porch if he had over seen one."

"Garry!" she said at length. "Isn't there anyone at all I can trust except you and Stuart?"

He looked down into her eyes. "Let me do the worrying for a while," he suggested. "Tell yourself you've handed me the burden. Can you do that?"

Her eyes met his unblinkingly. "I can do that," she said.

"Fine! I'm here for action and champing at the bit to get started. Where do I find people around here?"

She smiled at his enthusiasm. "Stuart is outside. Talk to him before you meet the others, so you won't be prejudiced. I want you to like him."

"I'm sure I shall. Now you run upstairs and change your shoes and stockings. They're wet."

He watched her go up the stairs. Then he sauntered out onto the lawn. Only one man was in sight, a good-looking fellow with the kind of shoulders Mr. Potter envied. For a moment he studied Stuart Young without moving. First impressions were always important.

Before he had made up his mind to approach Young the latter, who had been looking down toward the lake, started purposefully in that direction. Mr. Potter drifted along behind.

Stuart had joined a slim, dark-haired woman who was standing beside the boathouse and Mr.

Potter went closer. When he got within earshot Stuart was saying, "Look here, last night you said you didn't see Nora that day when you drove up to Lookout Point."

"Well, I didn't," Olive Riddle retorted. "And there's no point keeping at it."

"In the first place," I thought "But what did you tell the prosecutor?"

"Oh, dear, I can't remember the exact words now. Anyway, he got me completely confused, and then, on top of that, Finn was furious with me. Sometimes I think Finn is very unpleasant. He said anyone could turn me inside out and I'd better say nothing at all."

And yet, Stuart said, "your story is simple enough. You drove up to Lookout Point for the view, not knowing that was the spot Nora and I had chosen for our picnic. They could hardly confuse you on that, could they?"

"You wouldn't think so, would you?" Mrs. Riddle agreed.

Mr. Potter turned back to the inn, leaving Stuart Young to struggle with his witness. A car drove into the parking lot and the driver went around to open the door on the far side. He helped out a girl who, even at a distance, was worth looking at. She went quickly toward the kitchen and the young man started toward the veranda, saw that he was observed, shied like a startled fawn, and made off toward the tennis courts.

"Frank!"

At the sharp explosive command he squared his shoulders and went up the steps to the veranda where a thin, middle-aged man was waiting.

"Who was that girl? She looks like one of the waitresses."

"She is one of the waitresses," Frank said boldly. "She's earning money for college. A very nice girl. Her people have a dairy farm near here and I drove her down so she could visit them."

"Four years at Brown so you can prepare yourself to escort waitresses. Give me those car keys, and send Tom Jones to me. I've got something to say to him."

Frank surrendered the keys and hastened inside as though eager to escape. Mr. Potter looked after him thoughtfully.

Mr. Potter finds some vital clues in the murder of Candy Kendrick. Continue Chapter 15 of "Run for Your Life" here tomorrow.

Scientific Team Reports New Finding In Mentally Retarded

By DELOS SMITH
United Press Science Editor
NEW YORK — A scientific team studying eight mentally retarded young children in a minutely scientific way has concluded that undetected emotional illnesses were at least partly responsible. Furthermore, the team was able to help the children toward mental normality. This is of much interest because if undetected emotional illnesses cause very young children to seem mentally defective when they are not, something can be done to prevent them from growing up into mentally retarded adults.

Scientific investigations have produced so many suggestions along this line that no informed person refers to "mentally defective" as a term. It is clearly demonstrable is current that many mentally retarded children don't have to be.

Ends Next Fall
The study is that of Dr. Katharine F. Woodward, psychiatrist, Dr. Miriam G. Siegel, psychologist, Dr. Leon Horowitz, a children's physician, plus a trained nursery school teachers and psychiatric social workers. It began in the fall of 1954 and will end next fall. Meanwhile, Drs. Woodward and Siegel made a preliminary report in the journal, "Pediatrics."

"Pediatrics" is the medical science which treats emotional illnesses, and "too few psychiatric examinations have been done on mentally retarded children... except for a child with severe organic damage, these children rarely receive more than routine examinations until they reach school age," they wrote.

Study Parents Too
So the study was undertaken at New York's Lenox Hill Hospital where Dr. Woodward heads the pediatric psychiatry service. Eight retarded children ranging from three years, one month to four years, eight months were selected to attend a nursery school set up to study and help them. At the same time, the parents were studied, too.

The preliminary report covered the first year. It found that psychoneurotic (originating in the mind) factors exist in these cases. And the children "revealed changes of a positive nature, reflected in the attainment of skills more appropriate to their age level."

The team discovered "a considerable emotional disturbance" in the parents of the children. "The disturbance seemed deeply ingrained and appeared to stem from origins in their own childhood," the report said. "It had a negative effect on the marital relationship and their relationship to their children, especially the defiant one."

Start Psychiatry Early
If the healing science of psychiatry is to help the retarded child, "it should be instituted at a very early age, as soon as there is any suspicion of retardation," said the report. "It is the hope that the problem will correct itself spontaneously, parents and physicians tend to postpone such study until the child has reached school age."

Further and more intense investigation of this problem at the preschool level might avoid problems later in life for the child and for the family. It is possible that such studies might reduce to a measurable degree the population of our institutions for the mentally defective child.

O'Keefe Is Still Working

By WILLIAM EWALD
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK — Walter O'Keefe, who was starring in radio when you and I were young, Maggie, likes to tell this story on himself:

"I was sending a night letter by phone about a year ago and after I'd finished, the operator asked for my telephone number and home address. Then she asked my name.

"Walter O'Keefe," I said. "Walter O'Keefe?" she said, "my gosh, whatever happened to him?"

Well, Walter, for the benefit of those who haven't heard, he is back in harness again. After a two-year vacation from broadcast gulch, he is herding a radio show called "Nightline," an effort uncorrupted by NBC two weeks ago. It drops in on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights for 85 minutes.

A Relaxing Show
"It's a nice relaxing show," said Walter as he wrestled leisurely with a horse's neck, "no effort, no strain. It's just what I want at this point."

"There's a lot of music on the show, but we also pick up events around the nation—the lock-up at San Quentin, a raid on a Tennessee still, the talk among chorus girls backstage at a musical.

"Right now, we've got a man over in Europe cutting one-the-spot tapes for the show. Me, I'm just the link, the guy who kind of pastes it together."

Debuted in 1928, O'Keefe, still full of juice at 56, made his first network appearance in 1928 and later coaxed out such cro-magnum art works as "Lucky Strike Magic Carpet," "The Rudy Vallee Show" and "Kraft Music Hall." He was quizmaster on "Double or Nothing" for six years on radio, dropping the chore in 1953.

He had a brief fling on TV, emceeing "Two for the Money" during the summers of 1953 and 1954 and filling in briefly for Garry Moore in 1955.

Being Born Harder Than Dying

By DELOS SMITH
United Press Science Editor
NEW YORK — According to a well-known obstetrician, being born is harder on us than dying.

"Of the two transitions—each human being must make, birth and death, all of us already have negotiated the more difficult one and only the easier one confronts us," said Prof. Allan C. Barnes, the unborn infant lives, C. Barnes.

"Consider the situation" in he said in lecturing a medical audience. "With an oxygen supply corresponding to that of an altitude of 33,000 feet, its environment is equivalent to living about three quarters of a mile above the top of Mount Everest.

"If you and I were living in a similar situation and then were subjected to one of the most stressful phenomena of our existence, (being born), we probably would not make the grade with as low a mortality rate."

Placenta Miraculous Organ
Barnes, who is professor of obstetrics and gynecology at Western Reserve University, Cleveland, was emphasizing the fact that the unborn is "shut in a closed room" and gets oxygen and nourishment "entirely through one aperture."

"That aperture" is the placenta, that miraculous organ which forms in the womb for the one purpose of seeing the unborn through its development and its final emergence into the world as a formed and functioning individual. Barnes reminded a recent meeting of the Interstate Postgraduate Medical Association that the placenta was efficient for a strictly limited time.

"Let us consider the ages of the persons who convene in the delivery room," he said. "The mother is at the peak of her career, so to speak. Her tissues are young and vigorous. The baby is just beginning his life. His tissues are new and he has a life expectancy of 68 years."

The obstetrician usually feels aged, no matter how old he really is, but he still has some time ahead of him. But the human placenta is senile. Its arteries are hardened; its tissues are calcified. It is a dying organ. It is the oldest tissue in the delivery room from the standpoint of functional ability and capacity."

Alertness Emphasized
Therefore, it is extremely important for obstetricians to be alert to the continuing "sufficiency" of the placenta as the time for the emergence of the unborn approached, he emphasized. One trouble is that prospective mothers aren't helpful enough in providing the data from which the obstetrician could estimate

New Theory On Breast Feeding Is Forwarded

By DELOS SMITH
United Press Science Editor
NEW YORK — It is proposed to the scientific world that the greatest value of the mammary gland to mammals is not nutritional, as everyone has always supposed.

Rather it may be the gland's newly discovered ability to take up sickening bacteria from the mouth of a suckling infant and then return to the infant in milk the specific antibodies which protect it from the sickness. Thus, infants live, and grow up who otherwise would have died.

The proposal was made by three scientists of the University of Minnesota who made the discovery—infants and suckling calves. Birds which began manufacturing antibodies specific to the bacteria which they suckled.

It Doesn't Follow
Therefore, it doesn't follow that the mammary gland gives superior nutrition to mammalian young. But if it gave superior survival value that could account for the evolution of the many mammalian species which wherever they are on earth dominate over non-mammalian life, the scientists proposed.

Berry Campbell, Mohammed Sarwar, and William E. Petersen of the university's department of anatomy and dairy husbandry, instilled bacteria into the mouths of calves while they suckled.

The rhythmic application and release of suction in suckling drew bacteria up into the mammary glands, which began manufacturing antibodies specific to the bacteria with "extraordinary speed." The milk the calves received in subsequent feedings was rich with these protective antibodies.

This should not be confused with the well-known phenomenon of "maternal antibodies." The antibodies which pass into the first milk the antibodies it already has and the milk protects the infant against whatever sicknesses produced the antibodies in the first place.

Mechanism Protects Infants
The newly discovered mechanism protects the infant against sickness by providing antibodies for which "maternal antibodies" provided no protection. It makes "the mammary gland a part of the body's economy of the young," said the scientists in their report to the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

when that time would be. Prospective mothers can help, even so, by being alert to the first "quickening" of the unborn. But the obstetrician must tell them what that first "quickening" is likely to be.

Initially it is not, of course, a kick," he said. "It is not a blow. It is the fluttering of a butterfly trapped in the hand, the rising of a bubble against a hand held under water."

Armed Forces Pay Hike Is Ordered

By CHARLES CORDDRY
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON — Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson today ordered pay raises ranging from $12 to $50 a month for 360,000 skilled enlisted men and said the move may permit military manpower cuts.

The raises, which will cost about 49 million dollars the first year, will go to 18 per cent of the enlisted men in the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force. Wilson said the raises can be paid without legislation.

He added that the pay hikes will provide incentives for skilled men to stay in service and thereby "make it possible to operate with fewer total numbers."

To Emphasize Ability
Wilson said his action was "consistent" with recommendations of a special committee which recently proposed a complete overhaul of the Defense Department pay structure to emphasize ability rather than length of service.

Wilson's new plan apparently was as far as he could go in carrying out the more far-reaching proposals of the special committee, headed by Ralph J. Cordner, president of General Electric Co.

"In this way," they continued, "the immunity-producing tissues of the off-spring are greatly augmented, and the problem of survival in the face of the ubiquity of bacterial and perhaps viral pathogens is reduced."

They suggested their discovery should cause new thoughts about "the importance of natural feeding rather than artificial in the human infant. Though a definite advantage in breast feeding with regard to infection and mortality is persistently reported in this country, it is apparent that where sanitation is conspicuously poor, advantage is very much greater."

Cordner contended his plan would eventually save five billion dollars a year and perhaps eliminate the draft. However, the Budget Bureau rebuffed Wilson's efforts to put more of the Cordner plan into effect.

The Bureau indicated it considered the plan inflationary.

"Sold Down River"
The Army-Navy-Air Force Journal, commenting on the Budget Bureau turn-down in its current issue, said the Cordner group "feels that its efforts to get more defense for less money is being sold down the river."

Wilson made the pay raise announcement after Cordner presented him with the final report of his "defense advisory committee on professional and technical compensation."

Cordner made clear in his report how he felt about the measures taken by the Defense Department.

"Such benefits," he said, "cannot be achieved by half-measures—which adopt the terminology but kill the substance of the recommendations."

Controls Re-enlistments
Wilson said his plan also called for controls on re-enlistments so that "only those who can make a worthwhile contribution to the force are re-enlisted."

He said there would be increased emphasis on shifting and retaining men now serving in less technical jobs.

Under the new plan, a technical sergeant with five years' service in electronics would get a $35-a-month raise.

Under the Cordner proposals, the sergeant would have gone immediately from his present $195 a month to $250 and possibly $300 if his commander thought it merited. A year later he would be receiving $350 a month.

Ledger & Times File

A household shower was given for Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hal Stewart and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Overby May 8, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Murphy on North Fifth Street by Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Murphy and Mr. and Mrs. Luther Compton. These young married couples received many nice and useful gifts.

John E. Johnson, who served two and one-half years as a Marine and son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Johnson, recently married Miss Marilyn Hanson of Gary, Ind. The double ring ceremony was performed in the Methodist Church of Gary. The groom is a former resident of this county. His mother, the former Miss Ruby Humphreys, was reared in this county and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Humphreys.

Funeral services will be held in Falmouth at a date to be set, for Thornton E. McKinney, 74, who died Tuesday at a Murray hospital.

Murray State's tennis courts have received a new clay top, and new backstops are ordered for them, according to C. W. Kemper, supervisor of grounds.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hopkins, St. Louis, Mo., were called home last week on account of the illness of his mother, Mrs. Laura Hopkins of Almo.

CANDIDATE FOR
CIRCUIT JUDGE
42nd JUDICIAL DISTRICT

It gives me great pleasure to be able to announce to the voters of Calloway, Marshall and Livingston Counties that I am a candidate for the office of Circuit Judge of the 42nd Judicial District.

I am a graduate of the College of Law of the University of Kentucky and have been engaged in the active practice of law at Benton, Kentucky, since my graduation.

I do not seek this office for any personal glory or power that it might give me. I am a young man and election to this office would be a great honor upon which I could establish a career beneficial to both myself and the people of this district. Everyone agrees that a young man is entitled to an opportunity to prove his worth, all I ask or have ever asked is an opportunity. If I have the integrity, the ability and the talent to fill the office then we have all gained. The public has a just and honorable court and I have the trust and confidence of the people. If I should fail, you can remove me from office and the great loss is mine. I would no longer deserve your trust and confidence nor would I have a right to ask for it.

With your vote and confidence I will succeed, without it I can never have the opportunity to show what I can do. I am sure that when you send your sons and daughters to school you expect that some day they be given an opportunity to prove what they can do in this world.

I have a wife and three small children to support and educate. The office I seek will help me to accomplish this purpose, for that reason I earnestly solicit your support. I have no personal axes to grind, no law partners to throw business to, no animosities to revenge, only the desire to make the people a just, honest and honorable judge who administers justice to all alike regardless of race, creed or color. Every man is the same when he stands before the bar of justice, there are no big, no little, no rich, no poor, but all alike. If you elect me as your judge with the help of the almighty I shall make it so in this district as long as I may preside.

I served five and one-half years in the armed forces of my country during World War II. I served with the famed 82nd and 101st Airborne Divisions. We hit the beaches of Normandy at 9 a.m. on D-Day morning—we were at Eindhoven, Nijmegen, and Bastogne. This service does not entitle me to public office, I only mention it for the purpose of pointing out: If I could serve my country in a time of need in my capacity as a soldier, then does it not stand to reason that with my legal training and experience I could serve the people of this district in the capacity of Judge with equal distinction. Honor, character and integrity are the same whether they are found upon the battlefield or in public office. Without them a man is doomed to failure, with them there is no limit to what he can accomplish. Your trust and confidence I shall always cherish, your vote I earnestly solicit.

Yours very truly
